PŪRONGO-Ā-TAU 2020/21
Annual Report 2020/21
FROM OUR CE

Whanganui & Partners is committed to improving our economy and prosperity and this Annual Report plainly reflects that intention as we review a time of adaptation and growth. The past year has resulted in significant change for our local economy and for the business community, and it has been a period of considerable gains for Whanganui & Partners. We unlocked $700k in central government funding and embarked on a promotional campaign far bigger than we have ever undertaken before. We recognised the importance of concentrating our efforts on high-quality, targeted promotions to reflect the excellent experience Whanganui offers. Our marketing team forged ahead with confidence and saw Whanganui’s visitor industry thrive despite multiple lockdown periods nationally and ongoing border closures internationally. We celebrated having the best tourism growth in the country last year, in an exceptional contrast to a nationwide trend towards tourism loss. Through the Regional Business Partners network, Whanganui & Partners distributed more than $422,800 in funding and supported 269 local businesses. We were highly responsive and progressive as we helped the business community navigate the uncertainty Covid-19 created. As we worked towards encouraging and championing our entrepreneurs, Whanganui & Partners introduced the Innovate competition and announced a $25k prize pool allocation, in addition to mentorship and idea development for Innovate’s competitors. It has been a privilege to help local businesses survive and succeed through a challenging period, and to see them supported by the patronage and loyalty of locals. Challenges are inherent when a region experiences growth at the rate we have. We are facing any difficulties head on and our goal of a thriving population with opportunities for all is closer than ever.

Ngā mihi, Hannah Middleton, Chief Executive

FROM OUR CHAIR

Whanganui & Partners, together with collaborators and local businesses, continues to embark on projects buoyed by optimism and confidence. We are looking ahead to a year where the positive effects of the agency’s actions compound, and the resulting gains contribute to Whanganui’s increasing prosperity. The innovative spirit is an essential component to business growth, and Whanganui & Partners has prioritised nurturing and supporting new initiatives while acknowledging the exceptional achievements and collegiality of our established business community. Along with ongoing business support and provision of upskilling opportunities, the Innovate Whanganui project is testament to our dedication to maintaining Whanganui’s reputation as a place where business is challenging, exciting and world leading. We recognise the Whanganui business community’s numerous strengths as we look back on a year which ended with record consumer spend, incredible tourism growth, exceptional population growth and a real estate market which shows no sign of slowing. There has been a discernible shift in the way people talk about Whanganui, both at home and elsewhere. This well-deserved pride and enthusiasm for our place and our people inspires us. There is no better time than now, there is no better place than here. We are privileged and compelled to do better, live better, and continue along this path to prosperity for Whanganui.

Ngā mihi, Pahia Turia, Board Chair

We would also like to show our appreciation for Gaelle Deighton, who acted as interim CE until December 2020, Whitney Cox, Katrina Langdon and Tobee Wallace.
2020/21 IN WHANGANUI

Whanganui’s rising population, house prices, visitor and consumer spend have continued their upward trajectory. We saw unemployment decline despite a contrary nationwide trend in the aftermath of Covid-19.

We welcomed new businesses, new events and new residents in the past year and saw average earnings improve significantly. Housing remains a theme as new home buyers find it challenging to enter the market and housing stocks are sought after. However, we have seen population growth result in highly skilled residents contributing to our region and businesses expanding in a favourable economic climate.

We also saw several challenges become opportunities. The closure of the Mars Pet Food factory was an anxiously anticipated development in December 2020. In February 2021, Farmland Foods purchased the manufacturing plant and started a commissioning phase to transition the factory to its food production requirements with sustainability in mind.

WHAT DID WE DO LAST YEAR?
We maximised our marketing

Following our biggest-ever marketing campaign last year, we measured a significant increase in web traffic to our visitor-dedicated websites. We invested in our promotional efforts more than we have ever done so before and we worked to continue our tourism growth trend.

We refined our messages and articulated our brand’s strengths, collating our online identities into one and establishing a consistency of style and content to reflect Whanganui’s character as a sought-after place to live, work, study and visit.

FOCUS POINT:
Marketing Discover Whanganui

As border closures and travel restrictions hit tourism nationally, Whanganui’s visitor industry recorded growth in the face of adversity. Whanganui & Partners unlocked central government funding and leveraged it to maintain momentum in an industry where competition turned exclusively to the domestic market. We reacted with self-assurance as we promoted this incredible place and all it has to offer.

People in Auckland and Wellington were compelled to Discover Whanganui as images of our beautiful region impressed on billboards, in newspapers and in advertising all over their cities. We lost the 20% of our visitor market internationals account for, but tourism still grew by 3% - the best growth in New Zealand. Whanganui’s success was noted by Government when it announced the upcoming round of funding for provincial tourism.

We opted to use $700k in MBIE funding to grow Whanganui’s profile on a significant scale. The Government’s decision to support our region shows the progress we’ve made has been impactful and recognises the value of our growth in the long term.

The new round of funding the Government announced in May explicitly recognises that our region is worth investing in and has much to offer the tourism sector.
FOCUS POINT:

Our character defined

Recognising, measuring and shaping the shift in Whanganui’s perception requires many tools and varied approaches. We refreshed our website this year, and we grew our social media traffic and mainstream media presence to better reflect our character as a place of aspirations, innovations, creativity, beauty and purpose.

We chose to tell our story visually and supported our narrative with emotive language to articulate how fortunate we are to call this place home. We presented our people as the face of Whanganui, we celebrated our actions and achievements and we invited visitors to Discover our greatness.

We were intentional in our message - this is a prime destination to visit, live, work and do business. We succeeded in showing that Whanganui is a desirable place to be, and it is our fortune to be here.

WHAT DID JOURNALISTS HAVE TO SAY ABOUT WHANGANUI?

It’s like Amsterdam meets Napier.

Inventive eateries, a hipster bar, an art precinct...When did Whanganui get so cool?

Sharon Stephenson, Scout magazine

Whanganui, famed for its beautiful storied river, is also home to a vibrant, thriving artistic community.

Eleanor Black, Kia Ora magazine

It was only April, 2019, when Kiwis with itchy feet had the freedom and inclination to plot adventures in places like France or Fiji as opposed to Whanganui. New Zealand’s 15th largest city (almost 50,000 people) was a little far down the list. Well, here’s the thing: it shouldn’t have been then and it definitely isn’t now.

WHAT DID WE DO LAST YEAR?

We backed business growth

Optimism and enthusiasm have been high as our economy has continued to grow. We have been inspired by the resilience and confidence shown by our business community and Whanganui’s economic profile is rising along with our population growth and industry expansion.

We have supported entrepreneurs and business start-ups with advice, funding, mentorship, encouragement, and opportunities to upskill. We have brought our business leaders together and examined what it is that makes success achievable.

$422,800 distributed to local businesses for Covid-19 support

269 businesses supported through RBP funding

50 people through business start-up workshops

FOCUS POINT:

Innovate

This event is testing outstanding ideas with tough criteria and trying obstacles, it is enabling Whanganui’s entrepreneurs to prove they have the innovative nous to succeed.

By delivering Innovate in collaboration with The Factory, from Palmerston North, we have been able to put our first round of entrepreneurs through the best possible inaugural competition as they develop their concepts and compete to win $10k in seed funding at the Innovate awards night in September.

The cash prize is a significant lure, but it is the mentorship and education provided to the competitors which gives them an advantage to take their innovations to market no matter what the competition’s outcome is.

“Tenacity, endurance and self-belief are at the heart of every entrepreneur...The Factory has world class processes, years of experience and a playbook that will translate theory into positive action to benefit the entrepreneurs in local communities. We provide the tools, then Whanganui & Partners delivers Innovate in their own way.” Dave Craig, The Factory.
FOCUS POINT: The Backhouse on Taupō Quay

Our business team knows collaboration and association with likeminded people is the key to sustainable business practice. This was the impetus for the establishment of The Backhouse Trust, which is bringing businesses and institutions together in a multi-level working space on the corner of Drews Ave and Taupō Quay.

The Backhouse, the former UCOL A Block, is filling up fast as tenants recognise the value of being in a versatile building, with innovative neighbours, in our creative central business district.

The Backhouse has five tenants already under its roof and will be welcoming newcomers on board in the upcoming months.

“The mix of tenants at The Backhouse is a perfect representation of the eclectic nature that makes Whanganui so special. From a movie theatre to a wood-working studio, a youth employment facilitator to a dedicated space for local creatives, The Backhouse is full of innovation and possibility.”

Tim Easton, Strategic Lead - Business.

FOCUS POINT: LARFS@4

Agriculture benefits our local economy in immeasurable ways. The rural community contributes to our economy as primary industry leaders, in the uptake of innovation and technology, and in its contribution to our creative sector.

The facilitation of Lifestyle, Agribusiness, Rural and Farming Sessions (LARFS) recognised the broad range of contributions the farming sector makes and created an environment where rural people could share ideas, develop better skills and processes, and work towards building entrepreneurial capital in Whanganui’s food and fibre sector.

Continuity is another theme central to the rural community’s wellbeing and the provision of a Succession Planning Course gave rural families a chance to ensure a legacy, not a liability, awaits future generations.
WHAT DID WE DO LAST YEAR?

We championed our creative industries

We have championed Whanganui’s creative spirit with grants, mentorships, and defined career pathways.

We have celebrated our unique character by endorsing design and artistry through the media and interaction with institutions such as UNESCO.

We have led with our belief in Whanganui being a place where the exceptional is possible and where creative thinking is celebrated and exceptional.

FOCUS POINT:

Making It

Our creative community is supportive, collaborative and generous in nature. Leveraging these qualities, Whanganui & Partners created the Making It programme to match business mentors with artists and designers to ensure prosperity develops alongside their portfolios of work and creation.

This popular project has built financial literacy and increased professional and commercial knowledge.

“So, so grateful!! Thanks so much to you, Whanganui & Partners and Niki (Vernon) for making this help available for me and many other artists to get the help we so badly need to get sorted with our creative business.”

Angela Tier

100 production crew members stayed for 6 months

The production supported more than 120 local accommodation, catering and service providers
FOCUS POINT:
Film Whanganui

The formation of Film Whanganui and its rapidly developed proficiency, on the back of facilitating two international film productions, excited and motivated us. Whanganui & Partners established the NZ Regional Film Office to support our local creatives and enable those employed in production to work in the place they live and love.

Assisting production of two significant films and two additional productions exceeded our expectations and affirmed our belief that anything is possible in this place of creativity and skill.

International productions made a significant contribution, but they are not the only stars in the picture. Film Whanganui now has an online directory to connect industry playmakers and has helped with multiple projects as our reputation flourishes. Film Whanganui has embraced this year of opportunity and used it to demonstrate what is possible if we are prepared to be brave and willing.

"It’s been a dream. We found this amazing farm, and everything hinged on finding that location. It wasn’t easy, but we found what we wanted here in New Zealand and in Whanganui."

WHAT DID WE DO LAST YEAR?
We contributed to our people’s capability

As our population has grown, we have worked to ensure our workforce can adapt with skills and labour to meet the market. We continued to support our partner 100% SWEET and worked with the Port Employment Precinct to establish vocational pathways for young people.

We promoted Whanganui as a great place to find employment and outlined our design and manufacturing strengths.

FOCUS POINT:
Agent famil

International students make an important contribution to our educational institutions, a reality well recognised as we witnessed the effects of Covid-19 on our tertiary providers.

In March, our Agent Famil brought ten agents to Whanganui to highlight our attractiveness as an international study destination. Maintaining these relationships is an essential task as we look to a future when studies abroad resume with renewed competition among providers.

This Famil is crucial work towards our international education plan, which aims for growth in international student attraction and the resulting benefits for our tertiary education providers and the wider economy.
FOCUS POINT:
Vocational road trips

Building on our future capability goals, we embarked on six Vocational Road Trips to introduce young people to Whanganui businesses and forge mutually beneficial relationships and career pathways.

This project saw us collaborate with the Local Skills & Talent Working Group and enabled us to work together towards a positive outcome for our young people, our economy, and communities.

We recognise the impact made on young people when they see industry in operation and believe it is vitally important to show them what is possible in Whanganui and retain the skills and contribution they offer our workforce.
